The party remained over night, but on account of the cold, started back early Sunday morning over the short trail arriving at Union Point, about miles from the valley. Tupper thought he saw a short cut down the precipice, which at this point rises 2,000 feet above the floor of the valley. Tupper's companions followed him a short distance but finding the descent so steep them to certain death, they retraced their steps to the trail. Tupper refused to turn back and called out that he would be at the hotel in ten minutes. Arriving at the hotel and not finding Tupper there, Boland and Leavy made up a search party, which returned at dark without finding the missing man. This morning Major Benson, superintendent of the park, sent out a detail of troops to search. Tupper was traced to the edge of a cliff which has a sheer drop of hundreds of feet. All efforts to reach the foot of the cliff where it is believed Tupper's body is, have been in vain. Another attempt will be made

CRITCHLOW IS TO PROSECUTE

Salt Lake Lawyer Is Appointed Special Assistant U. S. District Attorney.

IN CHARGE OF COAL CASES

LITIGATION TAKEN OUT OF THE HANDS OF BOOTH.

Edward B. Critchlow has been appointed special assistant United States district attorney to prosecute the coal land cases

The appointment, made by Attorney General W. H. Moody in Washington, was announced yesterday. While Mr. Critchlow is nominally assistant to District Attorney Hiram E. Booth, it is stated in a dispatch from Washington that in reality he will not be responsible to Mr. Booth, but will report direct to the department of justice in Washington. It is asserted in Washington that Mr. Booth's connection with the cases will be only nominal.

Booth's connection with the cases will be only nominal.

According to the Washington advices, it was the original intention to appoint Mr. Critchlow special assistant attorney general, but a technical point was raised which caused a change of plans. One decision is on record in the federal court to the effect that an assistant attorney general has no right in a grand jury room. There is no question as to the right of an assistant district attorney to enter these sacred precincts. Hence the appointment of Mr. Critchlow as a special assistant district attorney is taken to indicate that a grand jury will be called to probe further the alleged coal land frauds in Utah.

Cases Involve Millions.

Cases are now pending in the federal court against the Utah Fuel company and the Pleasant Valley Coal company and the Pleasant Valley Coal company involving land worth many millions of dollars. The complaints, which have been explained at length in The Herald, charge that the companies mentioned acquired by fraud vast tracts of coal lands. Restitution and damages are asked. Mr. Critchlow will probably make his first appearance in court in this connection Nov. 8, when demurrers to the complaints are to be argued.

At the time Mr. Booth was appointed district attorney, in the face of charges filed in Washington, it was considered doubtful that he would be permitted to try the coal land cases, as part of the charges dealt with these. Mr. Booth denied them and President Roosevelt kept his political promise to Senators Reed Smoot and George Sutherland, appointing Booth.
